Other sports have contact, but such events are illegal under the rules of the game or are accidental and do not form part of the sport. The contact in contact sports can also include impact via a piece of sporting equipment, such as being struck by a hockey stick or football. Non-contact sports are those where participants should have no possible means of touching, such as sprinting, swimming, darts or snooker, where players use separate lanes or take turns of play.

With year-over-year ratings continuing to decline, the National Football League may have a bigger problem than presidential tweets or the national anthem. In less than two years, the NFL has paid out over $500 million in concussion settlements to thousands of retired players, and that may just be the beginning. Despite an increase in awareness concerning brain trauma in
